Friday 2/28/14

Yesterday afternoon I was enjoying time with Mike, Lukas, Joshy, Alison & Ellie when Dr Crawford called with the Pathology report. The news was unfortunate but not unexpected. Glio Blastoma is the official diagnosis and just as bad a prognosis as Dr Crawford warned me about. It was hard news to hear but having my family with me helped so much. I know how hard it must have been for all of them, but hopefully us all being together was comforting. I know it was for me.

Although it was a tough time yesterday I woke up this morning with some renewed positive energy. My symptoms have definitely improved and I'm able to get around easier. I feel ready to live each day I have left to the fullest.

It is not true that life is one damn thing after another—it's one damn thing over and over.

—EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY (1892–1952)
American poet

2/28 11:00

Lukas he got back to
here and cert
get back home
to any visit he angry young ma
him as I am a I truly feel so
an angry husbar

I heard from my morning. I have for next Thursday
Dr Matthew Eldin
I'm anxious to get
I regain my streng
live my life.

It is always one's virtues ar
into disaster.