

In passing, also, I would like to say that the first time Adam had a chance he laid the blame on woman.

Day 2

Well not much sleep happened last night. So found myself up at 4 am cleaning the house. It was actually quite cathartic. For a few hours I felt normal again and was able to escape from reality. Don't get me wrong - I am hoping that I'll find many other more fun ways to escape - but this worked for now.

I'm trying to work up the nerve to call Lukas. It is still too early, I don't want to wake him, but I need to hear his voice and how he is doing with the new job. I'm so proud of him.

Wow - I'm looking out our loft window over downtown Denver watching a beautiful sunrise. I'm looking forward to seeing many more.

4pm.

This has been a very tough day. Having to tell Lukas, Alison & Jeffrey as well as the rest of the family and friends was very difficult. But I felt tremendous love and support from everyone which means so much.

Mike and I are considering getting a second opinion. I think I'd feel better going through with all this after hearing from another neurosurgeon. I hope we can talk with someone at the University - I like Dr Crawford but this is such a big deal I need to hear that his colleagues agree with his dx and treatment recommendation.
I'm exhausted.
